Kingfisher faces possible license suspension

Last Friday, India's Director General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) slapped Kingfisher Airlines (IT) with a show-cause notice, forcing the company to demonstrate why it deserves to maintain its operating license.

In the midst of a stoppage in flights due to ongoing salary negotiation with employees, the regulator has granted the carrier 2 weeks to define a workable plan. If Kingfisher fails to come with a plan, it faces a possible suspension or cancelation of its license. IT has confirmed that it has received the notice, and will respond to the DGCA well before the deadline.

Nasair converts to Airbus fleet

In an effort to reduce operating costs, Saudi Arabian carrier Nasair (XY) will eliminate six Embraer E-190s and two E-195s from its fleet, converting to a single-type fleet of 40 Airbus A320s in the next four years. With a shift from the smaller capacity E-jets to the larger Airbus, the airline also hopes to accommodate the rapidly growing market in its region, which has seen an increase from 700,000 passengers to 3 million in the last 3 years. Presently, the airline operates 16 aircraft to six Saudi Arabian cities and 21 international destinations in the region.

Quote of the day

It is necessary to help others, not only in our prayers, but in our daily lives. If we find we cannot help others, the least we can do is to desist from harming them. - Dalai Lama

A bit of light relief

In light of the passing of Terry O'Connell, there will be no light relief today.
