Dear Colleagues,

The IFALPA Daily News is now available online.

Here are today's top headlines. To read more, click on the title:

Pilot shortage is an airline fairy tale

Airlines sell a commodity and buy from monopolies, i.e., the airports that provide landing rights.

So it isn't surprising they have such a tough time making money.

Pilots' group seeks criminal punishment for laser pointing

A spike in blinding laser attacks against airliners has Canada's largest pilots' association demanding government controls and tough criminal sanctions.

Brazil bans the Airbus A380 from Sao Paulo airport, says runway not wide enough

Brazil's air traffic regulator says the world's largest passenger jet will not be able to use the country's biggest airport because its main runway is not wide enough for the Airbus A380.

Low-cost Indian carriers opt for South-east Asian routes as AirAsia readies for India takeoff

India's low-cost carriers may be apprehensive of ensuing competition in the local market as AirAsia readies for its India takeoff, but they seem to have successfully dealt with Tony Fernandes' airline on the South-east Asian routes.

Avianca Brasil window-shops at Bombardier, Embraer

ULUSLARARASI TEMSİL IFALPA BELGESİ

Avianca Brasil, the closely held airline that offers free food, is talking with plane makers from outside Brazil along with domestic manufacturer Embraer SA about an order of as many 50 regional jets.

How Airbus Is debugging the A350

A few times a month, Airbus Flight Test Engineer Patrick du Ché stands up from his desk, takes off his jacket and tie, walks to the coat rack in the corner of his office, and slips into a set of fire-resistant underwear, a bright-orange flight suit, and sturdy black boots.
